MINER KILLED AT COLEMAN

David Gaudier, a miner, 1-year-old No. 3 entry of the M-Gillivray Creek Coal & Coke Company's mine at Coleman, was killed instantly by a fall of rock at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon. An inquest was held, and the remains will be laid to rest tomorrow afternoon.

Gardiner is survived by his widow and five children, ranging in age from six to twenty years. He was a native of Scotland, and came to Coleman nine years ago. He was deputy master of Coleman L.O.L.

SCABS BEING IMPORTED

We were told this morning, and on good authority, that scabs are being imported into the Pass strike area, and that the striking miners themselves have a hand in it.

Of course it is this way—large quantities of potatoes are coming in from prairie points, and large numbers of the tubers bear scabs. Next!

"ARSENE LUPIN"

Fresh from recent screen triumph Now together in a picture for the first time, John and Lionel Barrymore, appearing at Cole's theatre this week end.

A beautiful girl brought him to the brink of disaster—the thief with the charm of a great lover who had matched his wits with the great detective Guerdard and won. And now Guerdard had dangled this enticing bait before him, and he had fallen for it. A great and thrilling romance, worthy of its illustrious stars.

RIDING ON 'BAR' IS NOT ALLOWED

Two local youths, whose activities on a bicycle late at night recently attracted the eye of Constable J. H. Woodworth, at Calgary, were each fined $1 Tuesday in city police court.

The owner of the cycle was fined $1 for having piloted it at night without necessary lights, while he was cautioned on charges of having ridden his machine without a 1932 license, and of having carried a second person "on the bar," as the youthful rider stated. The second was fined $1 for having ridden on a bicycle in such a manner.—Ex.

The famous comedian, Burton, once owed a bill to a grocer named Berry. So annoyed was he at the persistence of the grocer to collect his bill, that on his last visit, the comedian waxed angry and said to him: "You have presented your bill, Berry, before it is due. Berry, your father, the elder Berry, would not have been such a goose, Berry. However, if you come around again, Berry, I'll kick your rasp, Berry, until it's black, Berry!"

If the Institute of Women Drivers, launched in Detroit, spreads to this country, the gentler sex in Canada will be able to take an official course in both front and back seat driving. The institute, which has the sponsorship of safety organizations, declares that there is more to back seat driving than nagging. The educated back seat driver is a sort of alarm clock often arousing a sleepy driver or calling timely attention to violation of rules of safety.

Miss Jessie Shaw, clerk in the Workmen's Compensation Board offices at Edmonton, died in hospital at Edmonton from injuries received in a motor car accident. Miss Shaw was riding in the rear seat of an auto driven by H. L. C. Christman, of Edmonton, when the machine failed to negotiate a bad turn two miles south of the city limits and plunged into a five-foot ditch. Miss Shaw is said to be the daughter of the late mine inspector, William Shaw. Her age is given as thirty-two.

OLD MAN DETROIT IS DEAD

His funeral takes place today in Blairmore, when Conlin's All-Canadian Shows open their three big day and nights of fun and thrills. Canada's premier outdoor amusement or organization is celebrating its eighth triumphal annual tour by presenting the greatest entertainment value of all time.

The genial "Pattie" Conklin, mayor of the tented city, states that he and his agents were unusually successful this year in their booking. The world's entertainment centres were combed for the best material, and the result is a wonder aggregation of variety, magnificence, originality and sensationalism.

Besides ten astounding sideshows, six of the latest and finest rides provide joyous thrills for the kids of all ages—the merry-go-round, the ferris wheel, the tilt-a-whirl, the caterpillar, the merry mixup, and that last word in thrillers, the Lindy Lacy (the only one in Canada). And there are scores of other sensational novel ties.

Saturday will be Children's Day, which means that each and every attraction will be open to the kiddies at specially reduced prices.

If you're suffering from depression, then go to the big show for quick cures.

PROPOSING COMMERCIAL WORK

Dr. Carpenter, of the Technical Institute, Calgary, was in town last week and met the School Board. He was here in the interests of commercial work and gave a very interesting address pertaining to this branch of education. His address was food for thought, and may bear fruit at no distant date. The Doctor will return about a month's time and will address a public meeting, to which people of the community—town and district—who have children attending school, are specially asked to attend. It is thought that the present tendency toward university education for the masses is not in the best interest of the people. A practical education along vocational lines leading up to useful occupation, other than the professions, is a pressing need. We want our children to be out of the unemployed class.—Ponoka Herald.

"CHEATERS AT PLAY"

A string of priceless emeralds is the glittering bait that lures a horde of covetous crooks aboard a big ocean liner—and life becomes one surprise after another to all concerned.

Breathless thrills, hilarious comedy, swift action and an absorbingly different romance all feature "Cheaters at Play," the delightful attraction that will be offered to the patrons of Cole's theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Preliminary steps have been taken towards establishing a branch of the Safeway Stores in Cranbrook. The company have taken a lease on the place on Norbury avenue now occupied by the Pine Tree Confectionery store, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas. It is said the store will be opened about July 1st. In all probability Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will continue in business here and may get a location on Baker street.—Cranbrook Courier.

In our last week's issue, we omitted mentioning an important feature of the Empire Day festivities here, in which Scout Master James Redford, of Bellevue, was presented with his scoutmaster's warrant by Commissioner J. W. Gresham; and Dr. C. G. Reinhorn, of Bellevue, was appointed district honorary surgeon. This honor is probably the only one of its kind in Alberta, and was earned by Dr. Reinhorn for his untiring activities among the Scouts during camp time in 1931.

WORLD HAPPENINGS
BRIEFLY TOLD

To economize in League of Nations expenses a measure proposed by Great Britain has been sent to the supervisory committee.

A bill amending and consolidating the fisheries act was put through the committee stage, and given third reading in the House of Commons. There was little discussion.

Millers of north and central Italy are now allowed to use 75 per cent of import grain, south Italy 95 per cent, while in Sardinia and Sicily restrictions have been entirely lifted.

To take possession of a fortune of about $180,000,000, a white-haired Armenian woman, Marianne Djankian, 80, has gone to India with her two sons.

Hope that 1932 would prove historic in drawing together all citizens of the British Empire was expressed by J. H. Thomas, Dominion Secretary, in an Empire Day address.

Shanghai was completely isolated from the rest of the world as far as mail is concerned, when the indoor postal workers joined the outdoor workers in a strike.

Attempts to find the abandoned Hudson's Bay Company fur ship "Baychino," and the salvaging of a rich fur cargo believed to be aboard, have been given up by William R. Graham and Mrs. Edna Christofferson.

Several thousand feet above the city of Chicago a youth killed himself in an aeroplane recently, because his dreams of becoming an aviator had come to naught. He shot himself to death.

In the first case of its kind ever brought in district courts, Angus D. Graham, paid $5.25 in county police court at London, Ontario, because he is said to have forgotten to put a stamp on a cheque.

New Earl of Egmont

Has Inherited All His Father's Troubles In Connection With Estate

The new Lord Egmont, with a pitiable figure. He made friends with no one but his father, and now there can be hardly any lonelier boy in the world than this 18-year-old earl. He avoids all society, and has a terror of publicity.

He will have all his father's troubles and more, for death duties must again be paid on the Egmont estates. His father was staggered to find the estates reduced in apparent value from $2,500,000 to $1,000,000, due to death duties and settlements on two dowager countesses.

Father and son shot rabbits and pheasants on the castle estate and sold them to neighboring villages to help meet expenses. The boy, who never had a mother's influence, had practically no education or experience of the world, and who has been embittered by the cruel disappointments encountered since reaching England, is left to cope with the problems of a large though impoverished estate.

Disastrous Economy

Demand For Products Ceases When Advertising Is Stopped

The most advertised manufacturers are the ones most asked for. Stores which advertise the most are the most frequented and prosperous. Their prices are no higher than at the other stores. Often they are lower for the precise reason that their advertisements bring them a bigger clientele and, as their sales are therefore far more, they are in a position to be content with a smaller profit on each sale. It was never so important to make sure that we do not become discouraged, and to go ahead with our business and keep money in circulation. How can we expect to succeed if we cut down on our advertisements which create the demand for the products of industry and commerce? This would be a false economy, an economy which would be disastrous.—Le Drait, Ottawa.

"Miss Emma, you can't think how I long to have a happy home."
"But I thought you were married."
"Yes, that is the reason,"—Nagels, Langite Welt, Berlin.

WHERE TO SPEND AN ENJOYABLE VACATION

Canada This Year

ANCE the annual vacation has become a definite part of modern life, the decision as to where it will be spent is of considerable importance.

Canada has a particular appeal to the vacationist, for it has an unusual variety of attractions; which may be enjoyed at reasonable cost.

For most people, the summer vacation is limited to a few weeks and is really shortened by the time used in travelling to and from the locality selected. Canada has an extensive system of good roads and excellent railway services, which greatly facilitate travel between provinces.

Canada presents a striking diversity of natural features—the rugged and picturesque Atlantic Coast; the St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes; the world's greatest inland waterway; the Laurentian Mountains, land of forest and stream; the prairies; the majestic Rockies; and the beautiful Pacific Coast. Each of these areas has its own attractions of scenic beauty and opportunities for enjoyable recreation. Fishing, hunting, camping, canoeing, and mountain-climbing may all be enjoyed under ideal conditions, while golf and tennis may be played practically everywhere.

Accommodation includes everything from camp site to luxurious hotel. Those to whom economy is a matter of concern may spend a pleasant vacation close to nature, at surprisingly small cost.

The National Development Bureau, Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, has prepared a series of automobile road maps, showing the main routes from one province to another, also a number of interesting booklets, including "Vacations in Canada," which describe the tourist attractions of each province. These will be sent to any of our readers planning a vacation. Applicants should state the areas in which they are interested.

The general overhaul, which takes place every winter, will still be done in the Orient.

The decision, which will bring additional employment for British Columbia workmen, has been reached by agreement with the Dominion Government.

The government has made concessions regarding dock dues and the Canadian Pacific Railway has undertaken to pay the additional costs of labor, which is nearly five times as expensive as that in the Orient.

The new policy will become effective with S.S. Empress of Russia which will go into drydock on July 15. She will be followed in turn by S.S. Empress of Japan, S.S. Empress of Asia and S.S. Empress of Canada.

A "full view" mask, in which the wearer can see on all sides, has been developed in Germany. The new mask is made of a transparent material which takes the place of rubber and fabric in the old mask.

Bird houses may seem attractive if painted red and other gay colors but the birds are more apt to come to live in houses that have a rustic or weathered look.

The city of Bahia, in Brazil, has a 240 foot elevator tower which carries pedestrians from the streets by the bay up to the streets on the hill.

This darling dress calls for the minimum of material, and as far as the making—well, you can see for yourself, it's child's play! The dress with deep armholes and deep square neck, has an attached yoked skirt. A French blue and white balise print with deep blue bindings was used to fashion it. The separate guimpe with darling puff sleeves was of pale blue sheer batiste. Small daughter can indulge in numbers of guimpes, for instance a white awais dotted in blue would be lovely. Then again, it would be entirely different and very unusual with the guimpe made of white batiste striped in the deeper blue.

Style No. 435 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 requires 1 1/2 yards of 35-inch material for blouse and 2 1/2 yards of binding.

Price of pattern 25 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

Repair Vessels At Esquimalt

Summer Overhaul Of C.P.R. Pacific Steamers To Be Made In Canada

Summer overhaul of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Empress liners which ply out of Vancouver, will be done at Esquimalt instead of at Hongkong in future. It is announced by Capt. E. Alkman, general superintendent of Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd.

The general overhaul, which takes place every winter, will still be done in the Orient.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 8

JOSEPH THE WORKER

Golden Text: "Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings."—Proverbs 22:29.

Lesson: Genesis 39 to 41.

Devotional Reading: Luke 19:11-23.

Explanations and Comments.

Joseph's Work During the Years of Plenty, verses 16-40.—"What a position for a man to attain at thirty years of age! Sold as a slave when seventeen, grand vizier of Egypt when thirty! God took thirteen years to make this man; and this man was the benefactor, and, under God, the saviour of the nation."

Joseph was Pharaoh's vizier. What that position meant Professor Hrested explains: "The supreme position occupied by Pharaoh meant a very active participation in the affairs of the government. He was accustomed every morning to meet the vizier, to consult with him on all the interests of the country and the current business which necessarily came under his eyes. The chief treasurer, through the local officials, collected all taxes; he was, however, under the authority of the vizier, to whom he made a report every morning. In the administration of justice the vizier was supreme. He was the motive power behind the organization. In his office we discern the complete centralization of all local chief functions."

No grass grew under the feet of Joseph during the seven years of plenty as he went throughout all the land of Egypt travelling from city to city, personally overseeing the collection of the harvest. Royal granaries had to be built and stored with one-fifth of the harvest, so marvelously plentiful that there were "as the sands of the sea." In the beginning all was carefully registered but at length Joseph had to "leave off numbering," for his scries could not keep up with the work.

"Take no thought for the morrow," Jesus counseled, but he meant take no anxious thought, have such trust in God's help that you will not be over-anxious about what the morrow may bring forth. Anxiety, worry, doubt, the future, is unchristian, a bad preparation for the possible, probable, or inevitable, is Christian. Fore-sorrow is very foolish, but fore-thought is very wise.

Civil Service Act

Private Secretaries Of Cabinet Ministers Will Be Absorbed Into Service

Private secretaries to cabinet ministers who lose their positions when there is a change of government will continue to be absorbed in the civil service provided they have served three years with a minister. The Civil Service act as at present worded enables a secretary to obtain a position in the service in a class not lower than chief clerk any time after he has served one year.

The question of absorbing private secretaries into the service has caused much protest and a great deal of discussion in Ottawa; defenders of the merit system have contended that it is unfair for private secretaries who have never passed a competitive examination to be placed over the heads of old employees in the departments thereby preventing them from being promoted.

When the question was considered by the civil service committee of the House, it was decided to recommend that the practice of absorbing private secretaries into the service without an examination be discontinued. When this recommendation came before the House of Commons in committee it raised a storm of protest. It came up when the bill to implement the recommendations of the committee was before the House.

Members on both sides of the chamber seemed agreed on the principle that a cabinet minister was entitled to a secretary of his own choice in view of the confidential relations which exist between them. For this reason there must be many dismissals of private secretaries and the ground taken by those members supporting the secretaries was that it would be unfair to put them out of service merely when a government changed.

Forgotten Soldiers

War Office Evidently Over-Looked Some Detailed For Special Duty

There must have been more than one case similar to the story told by Mr. Cedric Harwich in his recently published autobiography, of the two British soldiers who, detailed to look after a rifle range at Havre in 1914, remained there forgotten until the end of the war, when they reported themselves and claimed five years' back pay, states Canada in the Sunday Pictorial, who himself came across one man in a similar position at Innsbruck, the chief town of the Austrian Tyrol, three years after the war had ended. Dining in a hotel there, he was surprised to see at a nearby table a British captain in uniform. They got into conversation, and he said that he had been sent there in 1918 and was convinced he had been forgotten by the War Office. "I don't you get in touch with London?" asked the writer. "Why should I?" was his answer. "This is a cheap place in which to live."

In Plain Language

Congressman Jack Garner, speaker of the House, whose pet aversion is punyfooting, once conducted an investigation in which he expressed doubts of the truth of one witness' testimony. Later a reporter not at the hearing, interviewing Garner, asked the congressman if he had questioned the veracity of this witness.

"No," said Garner. "Did you express doubt of his truthfulness?" the reporter continued. "I should say not."

"Did you tell him you suspected him of falsifying?"
"By no means. Say, boy, what you trying to get at anyway? I did call the fellow a damn liar, if that's what you mean."

CHAPTER XXVII

"Willing Or Unwilling?"

It was over. A bare twenty yards from the brow of the hill the man had won, and now the mare was standing swaying between the shafts, shaking in every limb, her flanks heaving and the sweat streaming off her sodden coat in little rivulets.

Burke was beside her, patting her down and talking to her in a little intimate fashion much as though he were soothing a frightened child.

"You're all in, aren't you, old thing?" he murmured sympathetically. Then he glanced up at Jean, who was still sitting in the cart, feeling rather as though the end of the world had occurred and, in some surprising fashion, left her still cumbering the earth.

"She's pretty well run herself out," he remarked. "We shan't have any more trouble going home"—smiling briefly.

"I hope not," answered Jean a trifle flatly.

"All right?"

She nodded.

"Yes, thank you. You must be an excellent whip," she added. "I thought the mare would never stop."

Probably even Jean hardly realized the fitness of the horseman's remark of which she had just been a witness—the judgment and coolness Burke had evinced in letting the mare spend the first freshness of her strength before he essayed to check her mad pace; the dexterity with which he had somehow contrived to keep her straight; and finally, the consummate skill with which, that last half-mile, he had played her mouth, rejecting the dead pull on the reins—the instinctive error of the mediocre driver—which, so quickly mutes sensation and neutralizes every effort to bring a runaway to a standstill.

"Yes, I rather thought our number was up," agreed Burke absently. He was passing his hands feelingly over the mare to see if she were all right, and suddenly, with a sharp exclamation, he lifted one of her feet from the ground and examined it.

"Cast a shoe and torn her foot rather badly," he announced. "I'm afraid we shall have to stop at the next village and get her shod. It's not a little further on. You and I can have tea at the inn while she's at the blacksmith's."

"With a final caress of the steaming chestnut neck, he came back to the side of the cart, reins in hand."

"Can you drive her with a torn foot?" queried Jean.

"Oh, yes. We'll have to go carefully down this hill, though. There are such a confounded lot of loose stones about."

He climbed into the dog-cart and very soon they had reached the village, where the chestnut, tired and subdued, was turned over to the blacksmith's ministrations while Burke and Jean made their way to the inn.

Tea was brought to them upstairs in a quaint, old-fashioned parlour

When at last he released her, she leant helplessly against the woodwork of the window, panting and shaken. Her face was white as a magnolia petal and her eyes dark-rimmed with purple shadow.

A faint expression of compunction crossed Burke's face.

"I suppose—I shall never be forgiven now," he muttered roughly.

With an effort Jean forced her tongue to answer him.

"No," she said in a voice out of which every particle of feeling seemed to have departed. "You will never be forgiven."

A look of delectable came into his eyes.

He crossed the room and, locking the door, dropped the key into his pocket.

"I think," he remarked coolly, "in that case, I'd better keep you a prisoner here till you have promised to marry me. It's you I want. Your forgiveness can come after. I'll see to that."

The result of his action was unexpected. Jean turned to the window, unlatched it, and flung open the casement.

"If you don't unlock that door at once, Geoffrey," she said quietly, "I shall leave the room—this way!"

Her eyes narrowed him. They were feverishly bright, with an almost fanatical light in them, and suddenly Burke realized that she was at the end of her tether, that the emotional stress of the last quarter of an hour had taken its toll of her high-strung temperament and that she might even do what she had threatened. He had no conception of the motive behind this thing with Burke, rather than give Blaise, the man who held her heart between his two hands, ground for misunderstanding or mistaking her answer.

"Do you mean—you'd jump out?" he asked, openly incredulous.

A Suds Motor

Futuristic Automobile Engine Gives Increased Power
Detroit has the first suds motor—a futuristic automobile engine.

Using soap suds to cool its pistons and water in its exhaust valves, this engine develops a big increase in power—one-third more than gasoline alone.

The suds and water are not fuels but super-coolers. They demonstrate the profit in super-cooling certain extra hot spots in the present type engine.

This motor is set up in a research laboratory under direction of Earl Bartholomew. It is a "one lung" possessing only a single cylinder, three and one-quarter inches by five. It is also high compression. So high that compression alone can ignite the gasoline unless the suds and water are turned on. Cooling the exhaust valve alone increases power eight per cent. The valve is hollow, permitting water to flow through its interior.

SONG OF REST

After the day, the twilight,
Shadows that swiftly throng,
After the tempest, the calmness;
Silence after the song.

After the hours of toiling,
Conquering stubborn earth,
Rest after the well-beloved
Music and good and mirth.

After the frantic pulses
Hammering with desire,
Peace for a little season,
After fierce passion's fire.

After the long swim, breasting
Fierce eddies of life's strife,
Floating at ease, and drifting
Buoyed by the singing waves.

After the empty laughter,
After vain pomp is through,
Sea-wind and stars—and you!

Contract Bridge

By Hamilton B. Hatch, Cayendish Club
Toronto
(Article No. 1.)

The greatest asset any contract bridge player can possess is the ability to play partnership. The basis of success in the game is good partnership. The first thing, therefore, for the contract player to learn is partnership methods. The essence of partnership is, primarily, partnership language, and the basis of language is conventions. In other words, it is necessary for partnership purposes, that certain precise meanings be given to the language used in the contracting. These meanings are known as conventions. The difference in these conventions, is the basis of the difference in all the so-called contract systems now being put before the contract player. It must be understood that any system is an attempt to make good to learn the methods the good card player has used for many years, and that the fundamental differences in all these systems are slight.

Besides conventions a good partner must make it a habit to study, whenever the opportunity arises, the temperament, morale, and technique of his partner. By temperament is meant the way a partner reacts. Does he lose his pulse when the breaks are against him and does this loss of pulse affect his game, or does he remain calm and collected in the face of adversity? If your partner never loses his pulse then half the battle of partnership is won. But the morale is meant how your partner's courage is affected by adversity and where adversity have on your partner's intellectual processes? If your partner has bad breaks does he underbid or overbid? Or is he not affected apparently in any way. If your partner thinks that every time he holds an Ace Queen, that the King is over him, that everytime he holds a King Jack, that the Ace Queen is over him, then, this may affect him to such an extent that he will consistently underbid. A good partner, under these circumstances, when playing with a partner who is suffering from the complex outlined above will offset these conditions by overbidding his own hand.

By technique is meant your partner's actual ability in the play of the cards. Does he or she not get all the tricks possible? If he consistently drops a trick in the play of the hand, then a good partner when playing with a poor technician will undercall in his hands, when the poor technician is the contractor. If on the other hand, your partner is a good technician, then playing with a partner who is suffering from the complex outlined above will offset these conditions by overbidding his own hand.

A good player must always adapt himself to his partner. An adaptable player is one of the strongest assets of any player. If you have an unskilled partner, you must not try to lift him up by his bootstraps to your level. You must stick to his. No partnership is better than his. The weakest member has to set successful partnership, the partners must meet on the same intellectual plane.

Further be pleasant and affable. Do not "rag" your partner. Keep the entire cordial established. Never, if possible, lose your pulse. If your partner has a set system of playing the game, then for that particular partnership, play the game your partner plays and do not try to cram down his throat any of your own pet ideas or theories.

If then, you will realize that the theme song of contract bridge is partnership and more partnership, and that winning depends on partnership as outlined above, you will be well on the road to success, and even if your own technique is weak, you will be seventy-five per cent. good player provided you play good partnership.

KICK THEM OUT NOW

We believe that Canadian justice is as sure seated in one part of this far flung Dominion as it is in another and that Communists will get as fair a trial in Halifax as they will in Winnipeg, or Edmonton, or Sudbury—perhaps a fairer one since the change of venue takes them at least two thousand miles away from the scene of their pernicious activities. What they lose in distance from their homes they gain in greater proximity to the lands of their birth, which, from their words of hatred toward Canada, we should judge to be for them more desirable places to live in. At the same time it is curious to note how few of these people care to go back to Russia.

The objection is made that some of these detentionists have lived quite a while in Canada, have taken out naturalization papers and have assumed English names. To our mind—this makes their case the more binding. They may have assumed English names, but they have not absorbed British opinions. They have had plenty of time to assimilate our institutions, but they still hang on to their European grudges and miss no chance to blather about it. The Communists who are now awaiting sentence at Halifax have been the most flagrant in their curses and it is only fair that they should furnish the first example of British justice if only our encouragees less autors. It is high time that we got these rattlesnakes out of the country. The city is that they ever got into it and the wonder is how.

At all events their time has come for disappearing from the troubled scene before they can throw oil on a smouldering fire. Canada is a land of the misfortune of the whole civilized world, its bewilderment, and, to some extent, its fear. The situation calls for cool heads and calm reason, not for the poisonous vapors of these desperate incendiaries. The Communist in Canada, so far as we can see, has outstripped his brother in Russia. In that unhappy country the pressure of circumstance is edging Communism toward practical compromise with Capital, but in Canada no such ameliorating change takes place. The further away he is from the original gospel the fiercer the Communist seems to become. In Canada he is Karl Marx, not a nothing. He entertains extreme opinions, for which Mr. Stalin would have him shot should he bring them to Moscow.

Having learned no sense in Canada it is only proper that he should be deported to some other country where they instill it into him by more summary methods. These fellows have murderous minds, which lean to the subversion of government by bloodshed and violence. The practice of blowing up enemies with bombs—notice the foreign names of the offenders—is on the increase in Canada. Threats of assassination have been anonymously written to the Mayor of Toronto, among others, and before that to the Prime Minister of Canada.

From the word to the deed is a short step. Only the other day President Doumer, of France, was removed by Bolshevik bullets, and during the last twelve months almost every capital of Europe has been witness to similar tragedies. The peace negotiations at Shanghai have also been prejudiced by these official killings. In the United States the Communists, as well as the gangsters, have been using bombs as a final argument. We repeat that we do not

CORRESPONDENCE

Bellevue, Alberta,
May 31, 1932.

Editor Blairmore Enterprise:

To The Murphy Company.

Dear Sir: Will you please insert the following in your weekly paper? After hearing Harvey Murphy, Stokulak and Price again on Tuesday I was wondering if the boys would not like a little variety, instead of bearing the same old constant twaddle of Murphy's (or is it Martinovich's?) Spilling a good Irish name, if it is.

Well, let's get down to facts and have a look at the case from its proper angle. First of all, we came out on strike on the 21th of February, in support of Blairmore, on account of bad trouble with the boy being sent out of the mine, which we all agreed with, and which could have been settled next day; but, lo and behold, next day the Red element had forced the breach a little wider by kicking their grievances, which left 1 maintain could have been left over until the forming of a new agreement. Then the ball started rolling. We got Stokulak up with the cry to "the solid boys"; then we had the Red element down from Coleman on hundred per cent behind us (?); but they still kept on working. We sent a couple of delegates up (Simons and Cox), but they still decided to work and fill Blairmore and Bellevue orders, and give us financial help. But, probably they are like us—beginning to realize we are not in a trades union, but in a political revolutionary move. But we are still listening to all promises. Murphy and Stokulak promised us months ago they were going to get all the mines 100 per cent behind us. They told us they would get Fernie, Michel, Corbin, Hillcrest and Maple Leaf behind us, and we poor suckers took it all in.

Now we are beginning to realize we are the spearhead of the movement, a movement that during the last two years has actually squandered and wasted between forty and fifty thousand dollars of the miners' money. Wake up, boys, and drive these parasites out, and handle your own money. You could have fed all your men and families as long as this strike has lasted if you had all the money you have paid away during the last couple of years.

I heard Murphy state on Tuesday night that the boys that went to work were a bunch of scabs. I don't see it. They have a two-year agreement on the same old terms. Perhaps Murphy thinks Coleman are scabs—tell them the truth! Murphy, Stokulak and Price, you are not thinking about winning; but you don't want to see your pals go down the rails, because why? Because you, and your bunch will be losing good incomes. Get out, and there would be no bitterness between Britisher and foreigner. If a Britisher robbed a bank, which is against the law of this country, is it right for the union to suffer? The same applies to these Reds. If they want a revolution, ship them back to their own country to have one. It's against the law here, so why should all members of the union suffer. Yet the law allows Murphy to state that "some dark night twenty men will get them one by one." Probably Murphy don't realize that two can play that game, and more effectively than he thinks. We as Britishers are keeping law and order; but if they are going to allow Murphy to make such statements, don't blame us for what happens. And they, another statement he made about one of our old miners, one who actually attended the last two conferences, when he told Murphy on the 23rd of May that it was not a trades union now, out a revolutionary society, which this man should wish the bombs to get any closer. We have no desire to naturalize assassination in Canada and the most effective way to head off such a possibility is to drive out of our God-fearing, law-abiding, country all those who show such a bent—Montreal Standard.

A friend of ours at Claresholm, who had some time ago received a copy of our Volume II, "What We Know About Women," writes partly as follows: "Dear Friend Bartlett:—Several days ago I received a copy of your second volume on the fair sex, and should have acknowledged before, but have been too busy reading it to even sleep or eat. It is simply wonderful, and I expect to live to see your name and picture in the halls of fame or Story Mountain. Wishing you every success!" etc.

TACK EATER LIVES IN JAIL

Chicago, May 31.—Gerald Bodino swallowed a tack, he admitted, and went into business as champion tack eater of the world.

Gerald always was finding tacks in restaurant food. He'd complain vigorously, then reappear with an X-ray picture of the tack in his stomach. The restaurant management usually was glad to settle for $50 or $100.

He had collected $600 for imaginary tacks from several restaurants during the last few weeks, Gerald admitted to the police. When he ordered a dish of beans in one of the Rialto restaurant chain, sure enough, Gerald said he found a tack in the first forkful. He threatened to file suit, but Rialto was so certain that no tacks were in his beans that he called police. They put Gerald in jail, where tacks in beans are as scarce as pork.

At the conclusion of the convention of the Associated Bards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia, held at Fernie this week, Noble Binns was for the fourteenth consecutive year elected president. Coleman was represented at the convention by four board members, including Mr. H. T. Halliwell as spokesman. The meeting was well attended, and it was decided that next year's convention be held at Trail.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

The weather continues cool and with frequent showers over the district. Cutworms have done considerable damage to crops, entirely destroying fields of grain and young alfalfa in some localities. Pasture lands never looked better, and a heavy hay crop should be harvested this season. During the past week, frosts did considerable damage to both vegetable and flower gardens. Small fruits, such as currants, etc., have also been damaged by frosts and in some instances, where a few apple trees are being experimented with, frosts caught them when in blossom, giving them quite a setback.

A number of fans gathered in the Cowley recreation grounds on Sunday afternoon to witness an interesting play at baseball, when Cowley lost to the Porcupines 10 to 5. Then the Cowley team, still feeling courageous, played the Riviere Rats, with the latter emerging winners in a score of 10-4. Marked enthusiasm was shown in the play on all sides, and rooters cheered long and loud.

At the school sports held in Pinch Creek on Victoria Day, Jack Cowley won first prize in the half-mile foot race and first also in the hundred-yard foot race. In last week's paper, we stated that he won one second prize. As we had been then misinformed, we wish to make this correction now.

Lots of girls think the dishes wash themselves.

SEX DISORDERS

ARE CORRECTED

LONDON, May 26.—Research work in sex changes and remarkable operations performed at Charing Cross hospital, are described in the current quarter's "British Journal of Surgery."

The investigations and operations at the hospital have been carried out by Dr. L. R. Broster, the honorary assistant surgeon, and his colleague, Dr. Gardner Hill, of St. Thomas' hospital.

One cause investigated was that of a girl who began to grow a moustache and beard at the age of 14. Her general build was that of a boy rather than a girl, and her voice was low-pitched. Her mentality was that of a normal girl.

In another case, hair grew on the face of a girl at 16, and she was definitely of a masculine bodily type. She habitually shaved. Her facial expression was feminine, and she "thought" that her mental outlook was feminine. She was extremely self-conscious as to her condition.

A third case was that of a girl aged 18, who grew side whiskers and had hair on her limbs. Her voice was feminine.

An operation was performed in the second case, the adrenal gland being removed. The girl made a complete recovery and is now in good health. The beard and moustache began to disappear, and clusters of hair could be pulled out without causing pain. She also recovered normal feminine tendencies.

The two other cases were also operated upon. Case 1 recovered normal tendencies, but in case 3 there has been no change since the operation.

During the research work at Charing Cross hospital, six women who have taken on male characteristics have been operated upon.

(Where girls change into boys it is the suprarenal gland, above the kidneys, which determines the sex. Where boys develop feminine characteristics, the active gland is the pituitary gland, near the base of the brain.)

Cellophane.

Notwithstanding the present state of financial and economic uncertainty prevailing throughout the world, resulting, as it does, in huge business losses, unemployment, and much suffering, which, in turn, leads to general discouragement, the fact remains that the world continues to progress, and when we overcome our present difficulties, and proceed to profit by the lessons of this experience through which we are now passing, the world will be a better place than ever before.

The work of the scientists proceeds apace, important discoveries which will have a far-reaching effect throughout the years to come are being made, new inventions are developed, and brought to a high state of efficiency, all of which will add to the sum total of human comfort, convenience and prosperity in future years.

Let us take just one example, and it is one in which Canada should be especially interested and from which it will unquestionably largely benefit.

Canada enjoys vast forest wealth. It is one of the richest countries in the world in this respect. For many years the forests of Canada were looked upon as yielding wealth in only one form, namely, lumber. And even in this crude form billions of wealth were produced. Later, the value of our forests as a source of supply for the making of pulp, out of which paper is manufactured, came to be realized, and inasmuch as there are great rivers and waterfalls adjacent to many of our great forest areas, Canada in a few short years became one of the largest manufacturers of newsprint paper in the world, and is today the largest exporter of that everyday article of use.

Scientists men kept on working, and now the spruce trees of Canada not only supply us with lumber, and the countries of the world with paper, but from these same trees comes rayon silk, now manufactured in such quantities that silk hosiery, silk underwear, silk blouses, and many other articles of wearing apparel are worn by the masses of the people, instead of being a luxury only for the rich.

Nowadays when you buy a cigar you find it wrapped up in a little humidifier all its own, in a smooth, glossy, transparent, but tough kind of material, which is both moisture and dust proof. Candies, cakes, razor blades, cosmetics, articles of clothing, trunks and suitcases, in a word, almost everything of value is vitally important that the article should be kept clean, fresh and sanitary, comes to you wrapped in this substance, called cellophane.

And what is cellophane, which has almost overnight come into such general use? It is the old spruce tree in a new form. In fact, cellophane and rayon silk is one and the same thing, the only difference resulting from the methods of manufacture. The managers of Canadian Industries Limited, manufacturers of both rayon and cellophane, explain as follows:

"Basically, cellophane is the same as artificial silk differing from it only in the form it takes when it reaches the casting stage, where cellophane is cast in a sheet while the silk takes the shape of fine threads.

"Not only is cellophane light in weight, sanitary in that it is dust proof and moisture proof, but because of its transparency it allows off the goods so wrapped, and thus becomes a sales agent. Tests have demonstrated that articles and products cellophane-wrapped command a much larger sale than the same articles when not so wrapped.

The use of cellophane is still in its infancy, but Canadian Industries Limited have such faith in it that they have just erected a million and a quarter dollar cellophane plant in the Province of Quebec. Women's hats are now made of braided colored cellophane as one new use of the article, but what does the future hold? Will heavier, tougher grades ultimately replace glass in our windows? Will it be developed so that we can write on it with indelible inks and thus enable us to preserve records far beyond the life of ordinary paper? Who can tell, but without a doubt it will be used for many purposes at present unknown to us.

Thus does the world progress, even during times when seemingly things are slipping backward. There are always reasons for encouragement and confidence if we take the trouble to look for them. Cellophane is but an illustration, but in itself it means an entirely new industry, putting to more profitable use one of Canada's great natural resources.

Wanted To Be A Lifeguard

So the Prince of Wales Sent A Real Uniform To London Boy

Peter Garvie, a little boy in a London hospital, who wanted to be a lifeguard, was told by a nurse, as he was having several stitches taken out of a wound, that "lifeguards don't cry."

"Perhaps if you won't cry the Prince of Wales will make you one of his lifeguards," she said. "The prince visited the hospital a few days later and the little fellow called out: 'I want to be a lifeguard.' The nurse told the prince how brave the boy had been.

Two days later, a little lifeguard's uniform, complete every detail, was sent to Peter Garvie with a card: "From the Prince of Wales."

Mountain Pilgrimage

Yearly Pilgrimage To Shrine Of St. Patrick On West Coast Of Ireland

Perhaps the most unusual of all pilgrimages is that made annually to the mountain-top shrine of St. Patrick on the high, bare, cone-shaped mountain which bears his name and which overlooks Clew Bay, County Mayo, on the west coast of Ireland.

Additional interest is lent to the pilgrimage this year because the ceremonies to be held on Sunday, July 31st, will celebrate in honor of the 1500th anniversary of the arrival of St. Patrick in Ireland.

The pilgrimage is made yearly by many Canadians and Americans—so many in fact that the Cinarud Line for several seasons has devoted a special sailing to this purpose, the ship calling at Galway, a short distance from Westport, the starting point for the gruelling, rocky climb up the mountain, long known as Croagh Patrick, whose peak stands 2510 feet above the level of the sea.

According to tradition it was from this mountain that St. Patrick drove all the serpents from Ireland into the sea, never to return.

The pilgrimage up the side of the holy mountain, where St. Patrick spent the forty days of Lent in penance, fasting and prayer, 1500 years ago, begins on Saturday evening any time between six o'clock and midnight, daylight lasting close up to this time. Young people make the ascent in three hours or less, while the older people take much longer, owing to the quantity of the journey. Torch-lights are carried by many to light the way and guard against precipitous falls. Often the crowd breaks into a hymn to make the walking easier or to help them to forget the fatigue of trudging over the stony paths. For the climb up the last two hundred yards before reaching the summit the pilgrims remove their shoes and finish the journey barefooted. Many of the more religious make the entire climb without foot protection.

St. Patrick was seventy years old when he first climbed the mountain. Now many a pilgrim of the same age makes the journey, taking keen pride in this imitation of a part of the rigid Lenten penance of the patron saint of Ireland. There is still a thrill for them in kneeling where St. Patrick knelt fifteen centuries ago.

One thing about the pilgrimage is that rarely does any one turn back. Men and women using crutches finally reach the summit, taking five or more hours to make the ascent. Old folks go hand-in-hand, one helping the other. Girls with their feet fastened to the mountain side, guard against the thousands of pieces of chipped stones, which cover hundreds of acres of the mountain side. These stones are worn to shreds long before the summit is reached. Yet no one ever falls. Everybody goes on, just as if there was to be no returning back.

By six o'clock in the morning the half-acre summit of the mountain is crowded and so are the slopes, especially the protected side, should a chill wind be blowing. The masses begin at 6 a.m. and continue to be repeated until noon. As a rule about thirty priests celebrate the service in the oratory or little church, that tops the summit of the mountain. As many as six thousand receive communion.

Although the climb up Croagh Patrick is considered the most strenuous pilgrimage in the world, it is generally agreed that the views from the top are so superb that the visitor, as well as the pilgrim, feels that the journey is well worth the effort.

Wise mothers who know the virtues of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator always have it at hand, because it proves its value.

AS SLIM AS AT 20 Still Fit and Active at 55

"I have been taking the small dose of Kruschen Salts every morning for the last three years. I wouldn't be without them in the house. I used to suffer with constipation and piles, but an never troubled in that way now. I am 55 years, and as slim as when I was 20. I have to work very hard, as I have a family and an invalid father to attend to, and I always say it's the Kruschen that keeps me fit."—M. S.

There's nothing like hard work and activity for keeping superluous fat away. The trouble with most folks is finding the necessary energy. That is where Kruschen comes in. After you have had your daily supply of Kruschen every morning for a couple of weeks you'll get what a known the world over as "That Kruschen Feeling."

The urge for activity will fill your entire being—you'll be anxious to sit in the old arm chair after your day's work is done. Service Is Swift

Efficient Operators In Charge Of London's Overseas Telephone Exchange

London's overseas telephone exchange, recently opened, is a veritable "Tower of Babel" in a modern setting, for here telephone conversations are routed for the United States, Latin America, India, Japan, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Europe and ships at sea all hours of the day or night. There are one hundred and fifty girl operators, speaking French, German, Spanish and Italian, in addition to the native tongue, as the calls come through the wires. The service is so swift that it is possible for one in London to speak with, within half an hour, with persons as far away as Honolulu, Cape Town, Sydney, Buenos Aires, New York or Tokyo.

New Industry For Canada

Plant For Production Of Cellophane Operating In Quebec

Canadian materials and Canadian labor are employed in an industry now to Canada at the Canadian Industries cellophane plant which recently commenced production at Shawinigan Falls, Quebec.

Supplite pulp from Canadian forests form the basic raw material for the manufacture of the transparent wrapping substance now being made for the first time in Canada. Hitherto all the cellophane used in the Dominion has been imported from France.

The new plant, built by Canadian workers through Canadian capital and enterprise, is the newest industry in Canada and the latest addition to the industrial life of this little manufacturing town.

Arctic Islands Preserve

The area of wild life preserves set aside for the benefit of natives by the Department of the Interior, in the North West Territories, Canada, has been extended by taking in all islands under Canadian jurisdiction north of the districts of Mackenzie and Keewatin, with the exception of a part of Baffin Island. This large area is now known as the Arctic Islands Preserve. It embraces a land area of 439,100 square miles.

Miller's Worm Powders are the medicine for children who are found suffering from the ravages of worms. They immediately alter the stomachic conditions under which the worms sustain and drive them from the system, and at the same time they are antiseptic in their effect upon the digestive organs, restoring them to healthful operation and ensuring immunity from further disorders from such a cause.

Empire Tribunal

For Settlement Of Disputes Between Member States Of Empire

Call of reestablishment of a tribunal for settlement of justiciable and non-political disputes between member units of the British Commonwealth of Nations, was sounded by Prof. R. A. MacKay, of Dalhousie University, before the Canadian Political Science Association at Toronto.

Another speaker, Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., recognized authority on constitutional matters, took issue with an expressed view that establishment of such a permanent empire tribunal was blocked by lack of sufficient sovereignty by the Dominions.

Prof. MacKay contended that under technicalities of international law the Dominions did not have separate sovereign entities as between themselves, though they might be conceded such a status as between one of them and a foreign country outside the Empire. Under existing conditions, he said, Canada could be delegated to autonomous members of the British Commonwealth to settle a dispute, but in a controversy with Ireland or Australia would have to depend on the "dubious authority" of the privy council, or insufficiently defined powers of an arbitral tribunal.

Mr. Rowell argued that various intra-Empire conferences and the statute of Westminster had demonstrated the power of the crown was divided and could be delegated to autonomous members of the British Commonwealth.

Not Looking For War

Nations Of Europe Are No More Aggressive

William Hard, of New York, political correspondent for the National Broadcasting Company, returned from Italy on the "Roma." He was present at the disarmament conference in Geneva and said the present conference means the high mark has been reached in armament and henceforth there will be reductions. "There is no prospect of a war in Europe," he said. "Instead we find a remarkable situation, where every nation anticipates invasion, with no one ready to invade. Everywhere there are defenders but no aggressors; everywhere there is fear but no danger. When the European nations come to realize there is no danger, they will automatically disarm."

Mr. Hard found that the League of Nations is working strenuously for reductions in tariffs on the promise that where these barriers are removed, world trade will be restored.

"Europe is not in a bottomless pit," Mr. Hard said. "She will come up and out. I found great courage and confidence in France, England and Italy. It is a spirit of little known optimism in the United States."

"As for Italy, the spirit of nationalism there has been replaced by that of internationalism. They have passed through the Hitlerite stage. Young people are no longer always radical and frequently erratic."

The Many-Purpose Oil—Both in the house and stable there are scores of uses for "Eucal" Electric Oil. Use it for cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, the pains of rheumatism and eczema, and throat and chest. Horses are liable very largely to similar ailments and perhaps as afflict mankind, and it is the healing influence of this fine oil remedy which has made thousands of firm friends during the past fifty years.

Excuse Was Original

Farmer Speeded To Keep Pigs From Losing Weight

Warren Arts, Tiro farmer, was speeding to keep his pigs from losing weight, he told Traffic Judge Joseph F. Smith, at Cleveland, Ohio.

"If I hadn't reached Cleveland stockyards before they 'closed,' he said, 'I'd have had to wait until the next day and my pigs would shrink in weight overnight.'"

Now he's wondering if the shrinkage would have amounted to more than his $5 fine.

Banff Park Set Aside In 1885

Banff National Park in the province of Alberta is the oldest of the Dominion playgrounds, the original reservation having been set aside in 1885. It comprises an area of 2,865 square miles of territory. Reserved for the enjoyment of all who visit it, it is also a wild life sanctuary, evidence of which is manifest in the large number of mountain sheep, deer and bears to be seen in the areas adjacent to the highways of the park.

Despite progress in attacking tuberculosis, this disease still ranks as the third cause of death among industrial wage earners of Canada and the United States.

Cultivation of begonias is traced back to 1777, when some of these plants were introduced into England from Jamaica.

Substitute For Human Voice

Left speechless as the result of an operation some years ago, Dr. J. B. Bogart of New York, addressed the Annapolis Valley Medical Association through an instrument he has provided a substitute for the human voice. He spoke for twenty minutes. The instrument is a curved tube-like appliance, one of which is held against the throat, the other held lightly in the mouth. A small tube leads to a box held in the hand. It is from the box that the sound issues. He told the association he had invented it himself after his vocal cords had been removed in an operation for cancer. Dr. Bogart, who is a native of Nova Scotia, practices surgery in New York.

The Man With Asthma, almost long for death and his suffering. He has ahead only years of endless torment with intervals of rest which are themselves fraught with never ceasing fear of renewed attacks. Let him turn to Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy and know what complete relief it can give. Let him but use it faithfully and he will find his asthma a thing of the past.
